

FLYING BY FAITH

It's hard to believe it has been four weeks since my return from Indonesia. This was my first trip to the other side of the world, and I thoroughly enjoyed observing the differences in the people and cultures there versus Brazil.

Above is a picture of the participants of this course whom I had the privilege of learning with. Each one of these men has a leadership role in either aircraft maintenance or in flight, from both Papua New Guinea and Indonesia. The first week was spent discussing many of the issues pertaining to how most of the issues we face as technicians are due to human factors, not our skill. This is a hard concept to convey to a bunch of technicians at times!

The second week I had the privilege of riding along on 3 flights into the interior to see the work up front and personal. In one of the villages, as the pilot explained who I was, and that I train the pilots who fly there, the men did something I will always remember. First they expressed their thanks for the work that we do, as these pilots are "the best". Then they expressed they were sorry they didn't know I was coming and did not have a gift. After walking the runway and inspecting it, just before we left in the airplane, one of the men came up and handed me a pineapple as a gift of thanks. I know this may not seem like much, however, their humble display of appreciation spoke volumes to me.

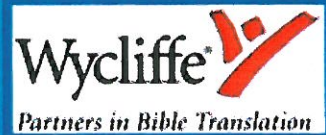

I would like to pass this THANKS on to each of you who have prayed and/or participated in our ministry!

In Christ, B.J. for Kris and the boys, too.
